KEY CHALLENGES ON THE PROGRAMME:

We have faced some challenges for better implementation of the programme like COVID-19, lack of communication and religious problems for community participation.

“Protection of Children from Trafficking Through Responsive Community Action”

ABOUT THE PROJECT : The prime reason for trafficking of large number of children from Districts of North 24 Parganas is social and cultural sanction to child labour and marriage, discrimination against the girl child, absence of protection mechanism for children, infirmities of response of the different departments of the govt. specially police. There is also problem of gap between police and the community, underreporting of trafficking & marriage cases, rescue and rehabilitation of victims, post rescue care and reintegration efforts.

In this critical context, DSWS has therefore decided to implement a project (Supported by Hummingbird Foundation) in Hingalganj Gram Panchayat under Hingalganj Block of North 24 Parganas and the Gram Panchayat is situated at the Indo Bangladesh border for the prevention of Child (Girls) trafficking.

THREE PILARS OF THE PROJECT

- ➔ Collectivisation
- ➔ VLCPCs.
- ➔ Entitlement

Strategies: We have taken some strategies to implement this project: Identify, pilot and promote innovative approaches to reach Collectives and promote their role as agents of change in their communities. Strengthening capacity of partners (including government duty bearers and civil society) through training in order to address adolescents' rights and needs for holistic services. Scaling up interventions with and for collectives through their overall empowerment through collectivisation module and in partnership with GOWB and other civil society organizations. Creating convergence across state line departments and allied departments.

LIVELIHOOD PROGRAM:

Existing artisan network/willingness to work with more women artisans :- Promotion of women entrepreneurs needs a multi branched approach. Women should be motivated to come out of their conventional profession for accepting more challenging and satisfying activities. Concurrently an environment should be equipped to facilitate their participation. Banks and other financial institutions must provide credit linkage facilities to women entrepreneurs on both priority basis and concessional terms. The problems of women in financial field have acknowledged great attention of international bodies in contemporary era. Several institutional arrangements have been made to protect and develop women entrepreneurship. Though there has been a constructive growth in women entrepreneurship, more & more support and engagement needs to be provided to them. This would certainly improve their socio-economic status which is a requirement for economic development. It is clear that DSWS is playing important and multi-dimensional role in promoting Self-Help Groups, women empowerment and also general rural development activities. It is eminent that socio-economic empowerment is made with the help of Self-Help Groups, Cooperative societies, Producer Company etc. Further, Self-Help Groups have formed for the empowerment of women and as such, by their active involvement in Self-Help Group activities, the women are receiving economic benefits, thereby even getting social status also. Rural women have formed Self-Help Groups those are promoted by DSWS. The Self-Help Groups have given women an economic identification, economic freedom, ways of income generation, etc. Quite a lot of women are becoming entrepreneurs particularly in the middleclass women due to realization of economic benefits. Presently, the women entrepreneurs prefer a profession as a challenge as an independent urge to do something innovative and have a livelihood occupation. But the fact remains that there are fewer women business entrepreneurs, struggling to set up and run their industries. The task therefore is to develop a system for bringing more women into the entrepreneurial area and provide them organized support.

Mangrove Plantation in Sunderbans, West Bengal

(Dignity for Work program, Supported by Goonj, West Bengal)

Mangroves are a salt-tolerant group of tropical plants that occupy the inter-tidal zones of the sheltered coasts. They adapted various unfavorable environmental conditions to growth with salt water, unstable soils due to tidal flow and lack of freshwater.

Mangroves with their characteristic root system are capable of reducing erosive forces of waves, tidal currents and consolidating sediment, thus check erosion. Mangroves are capable of preventing the water current and waves and works as a coastal defense function. Mangroves serve the function of wind breakers in the Sunderbans area and saves villages from being blowing away. Mangroves are the habitat of most of the fish and shellfish in the coastal waters.

Mangrove Plantation:

Plantation of mangrove saplings in the alongside river coast is intended to regenerate the depleted mangrove in Atapur area. As per the plan, the regeneration work covered in Atapur area.

Training on Raising Mangrove Nursery:

The SHGs in Mithakhali, Monipur, Atapur, Purba Atapur will work in raising the mangrove samplings for the plantation work. All the SHGs in these villages were identified. We required to contract with 03 SHGs to raise 01 lakhs of mangrove saplings. They are the leading stakeholder in raising the saplings and protecting the plantation plots. We selected 03 SHGs from the enlisted SHGs as per the given below criteria:

- ✿ Have prior experience of raising mangrove nurseries or familiar with the work
- ✿ Have bank account and other books of records updated
- ✿ Agree to protect the mangrove sites at least three years after the plantation
- ✿ The SHG must be constituted with female members
- ✿ Priority will be given to the vulnerable women groups
- ✿ The SHGs which members are residing beside the rivers must be prioritized

These SHGs were trained on how to raise mangrove saplings. It was a two days training.

Leaders and members of 03 SHGs participated at this training. On the first day of the training the theoretical part of the raising mangrove nursery raising was discussed. On the second day of the training, practical exercise was conducted. This process of preparing nursery has positive aspect from different aspects. This will empower the women economically, socially and politically. This will increase the participation and ownership of women and community people in the work and sustaining the work for a long time. This is also very cost-effective for the project by cutting many cost of bringing saplings from outside the village.

Raising Mangrove Saplings (DFW Program):

After the training, we provided nursery bag and organic manure to the SHGs. They started preparing the soil for the nursery, the nursery bed, and filled up the nursery bag with soil. Simultaneously, they started collecting mangrove seed from the river. The seed was then planted in the filled up bags. Within one months of the seeding, the saplings grew upto 1 feet. It was then shifted on the river bank. At the nursery bed the saplings are raising with sweet water. After shifting the saplings on river bed, it gets drown by saline water during high tide of the day. This helps the saplings to get habituated to grow in saline water. After that it is being planted on the river bed (saline water). If directly (from nursery bed) planted on the river bed (saline water) it will die. The saplings were kept at the river bank for two months.

Mangrove nursery and Planting Mangroves

Involvement of Community and Selection of the Vulnerable Sites:

In the mean time, community mobilization activities were conducted. We conducted village meetings, Cultural Program to make the people aware about the importance of mangrove to protect their villages. The villagers agreed to take off the work of mangrove plantation in their villages. The villagers suggested the plots available in their village for plantation. We involved consultant for selection of the mangrove plantation plots. The technical aspects of the plots were checked by the consultant. The plots were finalized with the consent of the villagers.

DFW and Plantation:

The plantation conducted through dry food package for 01 month. This helped people to get immediate livelihood opportunity and check migration. On the other hand, this will protect the village from future disaster through creation of community resource (mangrove forest). HMG level meetings were conducted for identification of the beneficiaries under DFW program. The beneficiaries (under DFW) for mangrove plantation were finalized in the meeting of Village Disaster Management Committee. After the selection of the beneficiaries, the construction of bamboo guard wall (in the required places), pit digging and plantation was conducted by the beneficiaries. The pits dug on the alongside of the river were filled up with silt (Pali) within one month of the digging the pit. The saplings were then carried out at the plantation sites and it was planted in the filled up pits.
